MILROY PEOPLE HAVE GOOD IDEA

In Proposed New Methodist Church They Will Provide Gymnasium and Reading Rooms.

CHURCH TO COST OVER $12,000

It Will Not be a Cold Building of Stone and Iron, But a Recreation Place as Well.

Milroy has caught the spirit of doing things and doing them right. Along with a new Methodist church they propose to build this spring, they will provide a gymnasium and reading room for the young and older men of that community. The Milroy Press says of the new project:

"The work of raising the money to build a new M. E. church is progressing nicely. The members are responding nobly and the $12,000 will soon be provided for. The committee believes that an extra thousand should and will be raised to meet any unexpected need, and also to be used to give additional beauty and comfort to the church."

The first week resulted in over half of the funds being subscribed. The Aid Society headed the list with $1000; also George Power and W. B. Crane each gave $1000. Mrs. Jennie Powers, Leroy Lines, S. R. Smith, J. M. Farlow, J. P. Archey, L. B. Miller and Dr. S. C. Thomas each gave $500. A large number of other members ranging from $300 to $50, and many smaller amounts, according to their ability.

A number of citizens, not members of that church, have already signified their desire to help by giving toward this building, and all such gifts will be gladly accepted and greatly appreciated by the M. E. congregation.

The building to be erected will be modern in every particular and will be one of which every citizen of the township may be justly proud. If the present plans carry, there will be rooms provided for a gymnasium, reading and recreation, to be open for public use all the time, thus giving the boys and men a place to spend their time."

THOUGHT ROBBERY HAD TAKEN PLACE

Nightwatchman Scanlan Awakened Postoffice Employee When he Saw Suspicious Signs.

MAIL SCATTERED ON FLOOR

Nightwatchman Tom Scanlan thought someone had broken into the postoffice about one o'clock this morning. Things were torn up in the rear of the building and mail scattered all over the floor in the front part. He awakened U. S. Geraghty at his home in West Second street and had him accompany him to the office. It was found that the rear mix-up was caused by the putting in of a sewer and that someone, mailing letters late last night, gave them an extra push and sent them all over the floor near the night mail box.

SWALLOWED HER TOOTH.

The Shelbyville News says: "While eating potatoes she was peeling, the crown of Mrs. William Fogarty's gold tooth came off and passed to her stomach with some of the masticated potato. No serious consequences are anticipated."

PRICE OF MILK LOWERED

Will Now Sell at the Reduced Price of Seven Cents per Quart.

Simultaneously with the reduction of the price of eggs comes the reduction of the price of milk. The milkmen of the city have agreed to sell it at seven cents per quart. This is done on account of the abundance of milk at this season of the year.

FARMERS CAN MAKE THE TEST

Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station Will Furnish the Seed For It.

WILL PROFIT BY THE TESTS

Nearly One Thousand Farmers Assisted in Various Parts of Indiana Last Year.

The Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station is again preparing to furnish a limited number of interested farmers in Indiana with a few leading varieties of corn, oats, cow peas or soy beans to test on their own farms. Four or five varieties which seem to be suitable for the locality where they are to be tested will be furnished, free of cost, in sufficient quantities to plant a quarter acre of each variety of corn, and a tenth acre of each variety of the other crops, on condition that an honest effort be made to conduct the test according to instructions and report results at the end of the season.

Last year nearly 800 such co-operative tests were conducted by farmers in all parts of the State. A summary of the results is being published in bulletin form. Copies of this bulletin may be had by applying to the director of the station.

The reports received from experimenters show clearly that these local tests may be of great benefit as through them many farmers are made acquainted with varieties that are better suited to their conditions than the ones they are using.

Indiana farmers interested in this offer may secure full particulars concerning the Station's requirements by writing to A. P. Wiancko, Agriculturist, Experiment Station, LaFayette, Ind.

"DOME OF FAILURE" TITLE OF ADDRESS

To be Delivered by Dr. Bovard at Presbyterian Church Sunday Afternoon.

MUSICAL PROGRAM ARRANGED

Dr. William Bovard, president of Moore's Hill college will address the Men's Big Meeting at the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the subject, "The Dome of Failure." This is the same subject that Dr. Bovard used in his address to the Men's Big Meeting at the English opera house in Indianapolis recently. The lecturer will arrive here from Piqua, Ohio, Saturday evening and will return to Oxford Sunday evening to preach in that city. An excellent musical program has been arranged.

The Daily Republican

Published Daily except Sunday by THE REPUBLICAN COMPANY

J. FEUDNER & SON, Proprietors.

Office, Republican Building, Northwest Corner Second and Perkins Streets.

Entered as second-class matter March 22, 1904, at the postoffice at Rushville, Indiana, under the act of Congress of March 3, 1897.

One year in the city by carrier..... $4.00

Roy Harrold, City Editor.

Friday, March 5, 1909.

Governor Marshall says he will sign the baseball bill but adds that he does not like to do it. Such a position will lose him friends from sympathizers on both sides of the question. The American people like a man that stands for something, and admire him even if they think him wrong.

Every man living in Rushville ought to feel ashamed of himself. We had an opportunity to get a library from the philanthropist, Carnegie, and turned it down because we did not feel inclined to vote a ten per cent. subsidy to keep it in running order. Every city around here has such an institution and now even Brookville is promoting a proposition to land one.

It is hoped that the citizens of Rushville will not fail to promote a big horse show this season. The first one, given last year, proved a bigger success than was anticipated. While the saloon men have always been generous on such occasions it is to be hoped that the citizens who were sincere and honest in their conviction in driving them from Rushville, will always respond generously in putting forth the enterprises that prove beneficial to the city.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

THE BUSINESS WOMEN.

(Greenfield Reporter.)
"Business women" in country towns are getting to be as thick as grass widows in Chicago. It's got so that nearly every high school graduate who hasn't a husband in sight, thinks she must become a "business woman." She learns to pound a typewriter in an indifferent, slipshod fashion, gets so she can "take" from dictation, provided the "dictator" talks slow, and at once blossoms out into a stenographer. She then accepts a position in some business man's office who is too lazy to do his own clerical work, and sits around in the way at about two-and-a-half a week. While this writer would not say a word to discourage the young lady who has a laudable ambition to become a "business woman" yet we are needing good cooks and housekeepers more than we are needing stenographers. But the ordinary young lady would rather accept a situation in some business man's office at a salary not sufficient to keep her in corsets than to work in some household at four dollars a week, where she has all the comforts of a good home with board thrown in.

THEY VOTED DRY, TOO.

(Greensburg Review.)

The non-superstitious and unbelievers who scoff at the idea of seeing and talking to real live spirits, have received a rough and tumble set back! It's all off now, and Albert Curry, a resident of Railroad street stands ready to prove it.

Albert is somewhat of a spiritualist himself and at a meeting of his followers held last night at his residence there were, so it is said, some "spooky doings." Spirits of persons known to have been dead at least a hundred years were called on and actually appeared before the astonished visitors. Tables were made to spin around like a top, chairs were overturned, throwing their occupants into a state of confusion. Curry declares that he can easily convince the most skeptical that he does not go into a trance and can perform his "feats of mystery" in broad daylight.

BY THE WAYSIDE

Now is the time when poverty stalks grim and naked all over this country of ours. The rich are poor and the poor remain in about the same condition as before March 1st. And people do not seem to hide their poverty. In fact every citizen of the county will be interviewed this month and every one will take extreme delight in telling the caller just how poor he is and has been for the past few weeks.

Bryan's Jet Black Stove Polish.

Is the best stove polish on the market. This is not our own verdict, alone, but that of a constantly increasing number of users who really constitute the "court of last appeal" in the matter of the utility of any article. Bryan's Jet Black is easy to apply, shines with least polishing, gives a lasting jet black lustre which make the stove a "thing of beauty." This polish is not only clean, smokeless, dustless and odorless, but it lengthens the life of any stove. Manufactured in both liquid and paste form. For sale wherever stove polishers are sold. 30412

We Recommend Sexine Pills.

It makes no difference what the cause is of one's weakness. If it be a tonic that is needed, Sexine Pills will do more than any other tonic. They are the one tonic that strikes at the bottom of all weakness - the nerve centers. They send new vitality bounding through the body, producing a glow and tingle that revive the languid energies of youth. Sexine Pills begin by bringing quiet repose to fluttering nerves, and inducing restful and refreshing sleep. Price $1.00 a box; six boxes $5.00, with full guarantee. Nearer Nature are the Latest Shoes for Women

Women's shoes for the spring and summer, according to a local merchant are nearer nature shape than any fashionable shoes for women made since the day of the square toe serge garter. The nature shaped shoe for women has come into fashion so gradually, so inconspicuously, that it has hardly been noticed.

The new nature-shaped shoe for women owes its popularity to the so-called straight lasts, which all manufacturers are using. These lasts follow the natural lines of the foot. There are no out-swings or in-swings as there were to lasts in fashion a few seasons ago. These swing lasts swung the foot inward or outward, and hurt the foot, the stride and the carriage of the body.

The new nature-shaped shoes for women are not like the orthopedic shoes with their broad toes, which are so popular in the children's lines. They are narrow toed, and short vamped, and very feminine looking.

The last maker uses the natural shape of the foot for the foundation of these new lasts. To the foundation he puts such decoration as pleases his fancy, just as a dressmaker puts tucks, ruffles and other trimmings on a gown. The modern idea of last making is to add to the last to give style to the shoe instead of cutting away from the last.

If one of these new nature-shaped shoes for women is put on a table, the fact is apparent that it furnishes a straight last helps to keep the foot drawn through its center, passing through the center of the heel, and the center of the forepart, it is apparent that the last is straight, swinging neither to the right nor to the left. This straight last helps to keep the foot in its natural shape and position. It does not turn the foot to the right nor to the left, and make the walk unnatural.

Another interesting feature of the women's shoe trade is that the average Lynn shoe for women is larger than the average Lynn shoe of 10 or 20 years ago. Manufacturers well remember when shoes ran from size No. 4 down. Now they run from size No. 4 up. In other words, women of the country are calling for larger shoes, instead of insisting on shoes of size No. 4 or less, they are wearing shoes larger than No. 4.

This new state of affairs in the women's shoe trade shelves two old jokes, one about the size of feet of Chicago women, and the other about women crowding their feet into little shoes, like Chinese women crowding their feet into tight bandages.

The Chicago foot of ample proportion and sure foundation, seems to be in fashion today. A substantial foot is not a thing of which to be ashamed in the women's world, and the old joke about women's tight shoes has ceased to amuse.

How Women Figure

Women of pale complexion have been warned to avoid the new taupe which has an undertone of dull green unless it has a touch of some color becoming to them.

A picturesque fashion has sprung up which permits the use of the fur-trimmed hat or toque with a direttore shoulder scarf. Muff and gown are selected to correspond.

Long transparent sleeves are being worn with decollete gowns. Tunics are being worn more with day gowns than the evening variety.

Late turbans are being constructed along lines copied from the paintings of old Arabian chieftains.

Neckpieces and muffs of fur are being trimmed with soutache, and the effect is highly pleasing.

Embroidery work is the rage in hosiery. Crowsfeet are the popular designs.

To those who wear the short sleeve the four-button glove will be fashionable.

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

A belated traveler, who was compelled to stay all night in a backwoods cabin, says that soon after the frugal meal a tall, gaunt, youth of about eighteen and an equally sallow and gaunt girl of about seventeen, both barefooted, took their hats from wooden pegs in the wall and prepared to go out, whereupon the mother, taking her pipe from between her yellow teeth, said reprovingly: "Go long and wash your feet, Levi, you an' Looley both! Haint you shamed to go off to an evenin' party without washin' your feet?" They obeyed, but as Levi took the washpan from a bench by the door he said, with a grumble: "I'd 'bout as soon stay home from a party as to fix up for it."

Tips For Men

Suits of dark green cloth, varying in tone from deep "Lincoln" to the deepest olive brown, are being displayed on all sides.

Single-breasted waistcoats without collars are being worn almost universally.

Cravats which combine the bow and knot forms are making a good impression in London.

Many English hats are being worn. Green derbies are seen occasionally.

The dressy Chesterfield overcoat is seen at all semi-formal functions.

Double-breasted coats made without breast pockets are taking well.

Long lapels for spring suits will be in vogue.

Good dressers among men will be found in new attire on Easter Sunday, as well as women.

Some of the nifty dressers will wear their coats long in spite of the fashion.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, March 5.—Governor Marshall has attached his signature to the Indianapolis Merchants' association public accounting and uniform bookkeeping bill. W. C. Bobbs, Hugh Dougherty, Evans Woollen and other members of the association were present when the bill was signed. The pen used was turned over to the association as a souvenir. The bill provides that the governor shall appoint a chief inspector at a salary of $4,000 a year; two deputies at $3,000 each, and that the chief inspector shall appoint field deputies at a salary of $10 a day and traveling expenses. The uniform system of accounting will take effect the first of next year. In signing the bill Governor Marshall said: "Pressure has been brought to bear to keep me from signing this bill. But I think such a law will be of inestimable value to the state. I am sure that the gentlemen who have worked for this bill have worked in good faith and entirely free from any hope of fees. I am sure also, that mistakes and dishonesty will be prevented by this law. I might remark also that your bill and Bill Taft are going into office on the same day."

Unless Governor Marshall vetoes the Broiley bill passed by the senate by a vote of 26 to 19, Indianapolis and other Indiana cities may have Sunday baseball this year. It is said that he will offer no further opposition to Sunday baseball, having vetoed the first bill to legalize it. The bill met with very little opposition. Senator Kane asked that the rules be suspended so that it could be considered without further delay. His motion prevailed by a vote of 20 to 18. Senator Pearson, one of the reform members, attempted to kill the measure by offering an amendment providing for Sunday banking hours and Sunday horse racing. He said that horse racing is just as essential to the laboring classes on Sunday as baseball. Senator Kistler, Democratic leader, moved that such "silly little motions as the one offered by Pearson be not considered." On the request of Senators Mattingly and Pearson, Senator Kistler's remarks were not made a matter of record. Senator Pearson's motion was killed and the bill was then placed on its passage. The only Democrats voting against it were Senators McCarty and Tilden. Five Republicans voted with the Democrats. The American Association has scheduled Sunday games for Indianapolis, and it is believed that they will be played. If Governor Marshall vetoes the bill the entire legislature will be surprised, in view of the statement he has made that he will not inflict his views on the subject on the legislators. Sunday baseball has been played in Fort Wayne, Evansville and all larger cities except Indianapolis.

Governor Marshall signed the bill repealing the metropolitan police law, which applies to Hammond, Logansport, Lafayette, Vincennes, Elwood, Marion, Anderson, Muncie, Richmond, Michigan City and other cities. The law marks an important change, as it gives to fourteen of the important cities of the state the right of home rule in appointing police boards. The members will be appointed by the mayor with consent of the council and the boards will be non-partisan. The Democrats were pledged in their platform to the repeal of this law.

The effort to put through the Wells bill permitting the sale of "near beer" in "dry" territory, failed in the house for want of a constitutional majority. No further effort will be made to pass the Kleckner township and ward unit local option measure in the house. The Democratic leaders feel they carried out their platform when they put the Tomlinson-Proctor bill through the house and lined up all but two of their members for it in the senate.

The Democrats of the house caucused and decided to uphold Governor Marshall's veto of the Linton, Gary, Hammond and Clay and Morgan county court bills. The same were passed over the governor's head in the senate. Representative Behymer urged the house Democrats to stand by their original vote, but Speaker Honan, Representative Thornton and others said that the thing to do was to uphold the governor.

The Democratic plan for investigation of the state offices, as suggested by Governor Marshall, to find out how money was being expended and how much help was needed, has fallen through, as there is not sufficient time. Senator McCullough, a Democratic member of the legislative investigation committee, said today that nothing will be done.

FURTHER FEDERAL INDICTMENTS.
New York, March 5.—The federal grand jury here, which has been investigating alleged libelous publications in connection with the Panama canal purchase, has returned indictments against the Press Publishing company, publishers of the New York World, and Caleb Van Hamm, one of the editors of the World. THE SENATE IS AT WORK TODAY

Confirmation of Mr. Taft's Appointments In Hand.

THE HOUSE TAKES A VACATION

Until the Special Session Convenes March 15, the Lower House of Congress Will Be in Vacation—The Senate, However, Kept Right on, the Sixtieth Session Merging Into the Sixty-First Without a Pause, and the Solons Are Today Engaged in the Task of Confirming President Taft's Appointments.

Washington, March 5.—The Sixtieth congress glided into the Sixty-first so imperceptibly that the change was scarcely noticeable. The final act, though unofficial in so far as the house was concerned, took place in the senate chamber, where both houses witnessed the incoming of the new administration. The senate convened at noon today to consider President Taft's nominations, but the house will not convene again until the beginning of the extra session of congress to be called for the 15th inst.

Extravagance Is Charged.

Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee in the house, declared that the expenditures of the government have at no time except in war increased as rapidly as during the past eight years, primarily caused by popular and executive demands upon congress for appropriations for the exercise of rights and functions belonging exclusively to the states and the national and unnecessary war expenditures in time of peace.

Appropriations during the past eight years, including the fiscal year 1910, he said, were equal to $7,007,839,183, and he declared that at the end of the present fiscal year there will be a deficit of $150,000,000. He severely criticised the executive branch for submitting estimates of expenditures far in excess of estimates of receipts. He placed the appropriations for the expiring session at $1,044,014,298.

The Minority's Word on It.

Mr. Livingston of Georgia, the ranking minority member of the committee, characterized the appropriations as stupendous, saying they exceeded last session by $35,616,754, and greater than at any two sessions prior to 1898. He declared congress should be commended for the millions it had refused to appropriate "notwithstanding the pressure brought to bear by the executive and the badgering of innumerable interests on all sides clamoring to get their hands into the treasury."

Senator Culberson submitted a statement covering the past seven years, stating that the increase of appropriations for 1910 show an increase over those of 1903 of over $328,000,000, or about 51 per cent, and that the treasury's estimated expenditures for 1910 exceed 1902 by over $375,000,000, an increase of 63 per cent in eight years.

BALDNESS UNKNOWN.

One of the most prominent drugists in America made a statement a few weeks ago which has caused a great deal of discussion among scientists in the medical press.

He said: "If the new hair grower, Parisian Sage, increases its sales as it has during the past year, it will be used by nearly every man, woman and child in America within eight years."

"And when Parisian Sage is used almost universally, dandruff will disappear and with its departure baldness, itching scalp, splitting hair and all scalp diseases will follow and twenty years from now a baldhead will be a rarity."

There's only one way to cure dandruff and that is to kill the germ. There is only one hair preparation that will kill the germs, and that is Parisian Sage. It is guaranteed to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching of the scalp in two weeks, or money back.

It is the most pleasant and invigorating tonic, and is not sticky or greasy.

Lesson X.—First Quarter, For March 7, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 26-40. Memory Verses 29-31—Golden Text. John v, 39—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

In the midst of all this great work in Samaria, Philip is commanded by a messenger from heaven to arise and go toward the south to certain road through a desert place. That Heaven is really interested in affairs on earth, that God Himself cares for my personal affairs, that He careth for me as truly as He cared for Abraham or Isaac or Jacob or Hagar or Samuel or Gideon or the many others to whom He sent special messengers or special messages, is a great truth to have grasp one's soul. Yet it is so plainly stated in such passages as II Chron. xvi, 9; Prov. xv, 3, as well as illustrated in so many individual cases that to question it is simply unmindful unbelief. Here is the story of a great man in the eyes of the world who had charge of all the treasure of the queen of Ethiopia, a man who was well fixed, as far as this world goes, but he evidently had no rest in his soul, but a great hunger for something that money could not buy. He had made a long journey to Jerusalem, the city of the great king, where the queen of Sheba had once gone to see the greatness of Solomon, but he was returning home unsatisfied, not having found that which his soul sought.

As he journeyed he was reading the prophecy of Isaiah. It would be a rare thing today to find any one traveling by train or trolley or steamer reading such a book. Whether he possessed the book before he left home or obtained it in Jerusalem the record does not say, but the record does say that he read it as he journeyed, and that is the important thing. He was diligently seeking the truth, and he was noticed in Heaven, and events were ordered that he might obtain what he sought (Jer. xxix, 13). God used an angel and a man to bring it about.

In connection with angels I love to ponder Ps. ciii, 20, "Bless the Lord, ye His angels, that excel in strength, that do His commandments, harkening unto the voice of His word," and then Heb. i, 14, where we read that they minister to the heirs of salvation. They are His ministers doing His pleasure, and we should be the same, proving always that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. Philip was evidently one with the angels in this matter, a willing and obedient servant of Christ, for without questioning he arose and went. The Lord knew His man and could say in this case as in some others: I have found Me a man. He is ever saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" But how few reply like the prophet, "Here am I; send me!" (Isa. vi, 8.) It was wholly against human reason and so called common sense that a man who was being used as Philip was should leave a great work and go down to the desert. But the great question is, Whose work is it, and who is doing it? That being settled, then it must be day by day, What wilt Thou, or where wilt Thou? And to the reply there is nothing for us but prompt and cheerful obedience. Philip was a man to whom an angel or the Holy Spirit could talk. He had obeyed the voice of the angel, and now the Spirit says, "Join thyself to this chariot." So he ran to it and heard the man reading the prophet Isaiah and said to him, "Understandest thou what thou readest?" (Verse 30.) We are reminded of our Lord's oft repeated similar question, as in Matt. xiii, 51; xvi, 9-11, and of Heb. xi, 3, where we learn that the way to understand is to believe. Philip is invited to ride in the chariot that he may explain the portion being read, which was what we call Isa. lili, 7, 8, and beginning at that Scripture he preached Jesus, His sufferings and glory, His kingdom and the way to enter it. The eunuch, seeing him whom he unconsciously longed for thus set before him, at once received Him and confessed it by baptism and went on his way rejoicing, no doubt to carry the glad tidings to many in Ethiopia. Philip was caught away by the Spirit and from Azotus to Caesarea preached the gospel in all the cities through which he passed.

Our Lord was as ready to preach to one as to hundreds, and if we are truly His followers we will be ready to do likewise. How varied was Philip's experience in this incident—a long journey on foot, a ride in a royal chariot, caught away supernaturally by the Spirit, but, best of all, used by God to turn a seeking soul to Himself. What an illustration of "for any manner of service, wholly at thy commandment" (I Chron. xxviii, 21). As to preaching Jesus, there is no one else to preach, and unless He is set forth as God manifest in the flesh, suffering for our sins, wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquities, risen, ascended, interceding and coming again in glory to establish His kingdom, the preaching is not according to the Scriptures. Philip began just where the man was reading and preached Jesus, and, while Isa. lili is a specially good portion to begin at and to preach from, there is no part of the whole Bible where He can not be seen and from which He can not be set forth as the suffering and the glorified one.

There is no possibility of following Him as our example until we have received Him as our Saviour.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 7, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Life lessons for me from the Psalms—Ps. xvi, 1-11. (Consecration meeting.)

The expression "for me" indicated in the topic has a special significance as related to the Psalms. Every book of the Bible applies more or less to the individual, but the Psalms in this respect surpass all others. No other book has been more widely read, and no other has had so many comments written upon it. The reason for these things lies close to the surface. The Psalms are largely devotional. They are the expressions of the soul in its relation to God under the most varied circumstances. The experiences of the soul are and always have been essentially the same, and hence when the soul is cast down or exalted, when under depression or blessed with a perfect trust, we turn to the Psalms to read the experiences of others under similar circumstances, and we never go away without a blessing. The Psalms have been a powerful factor both in church life and national life, but, above all, they have filled longing wants in the individual life. If you have neglected or are neglecting this book as a means of your personal growth in experimental religion and in all graces you are making a sad mistake. In the Twenty-third Psalm, for instance, only the singular personal pronoun is used, illustrating that they are "for me."

The book of Psalms is a collection of sacred poems, used in song and composed by various authors, but principally by David, and hence they are commonly called the "Psalms of David." They include historical references, confessions of men, Messianic prophecies, the outpourings of the soul in times of doubt and despair and praises and rejoicings in times of implicit trust and joy. The book consists of 150 Psalms, yet there is no division as to time or as to the subjects used. The Jews divide them into five books, which division has been followed by the revisers of the Old Testament:

Book I.—Ps. 1-41.
Book II.—Ps. 42-72.
Book III.—Ps. 73-93.
Book IV.—Ps. 90-106.
Book V.—Ps. 107-150.

Nor are the divisions arbitrary. At the end of each one there is a natural stopping place. The first book closes with the words, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting, amen and amen" (Ps. xli, 13); the second, "The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended" (Ps. lxxi).

CURED BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Hopkins Says Her Life Was Saved—Choked and Gassed for Breath.

"Some five years ago I was taken with a bad attack of bronchitis. I was affected with a bronchial cough and cold, the cough was generally much more apparent at night, and I would wake up choking and gasping for breath, and there seemed to be a terrible stoppage in my throat and tubes. My throat was tender and irritable, and had an aching sensation, which was especially bad at times. I doctored and used several remedies, but received no permanent relief until I used Hyomei. This remedy is certainly infallible, and it saved my life, and I accord it the credit which it deserves. There is nothing too strong for me to say regarding Hyomei." Mrs. Ada Hopkins, 8 Cutter Ave., Coldwater, Mich., August 22, 1908.

F. B. Johnson & Co. sell Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) and they guarantee it to cure bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, croup, hay fever, coughs and colds, or money back.

The price for a complete outfit is only $1.00, which includes a bottle of Hyomei and a neat hard-rubber inhaler.

MI-O-NA

Cures Dyspepsia.

Your money back if it don't. Gives immediate relief from heartburn, sour stomach, stomach distress and sick headache. 50 cents a large box at F. B. JOHNSON & CO.

20; the third, "Blessed be the Lord forever, amen and amen" (Ps. lxxxix, 52); the fourth, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting, and let all the people say amen; praise ye the Lord" (Ps. cxi, 49); the fifth, "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord; praise ye the Lord" (Ps. cxi, 6).

The Forty-sixth Psalm is a lesson to the church and to us as members of it. In the midst of all the trials of the church "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved. God shall help her, and that right early." So it is with our lives. God is in the midst of them, and we need not fear though the earth and the mountains be moved or the waters roar. "God is our refuge and our strength."

A Christian Endeavorer In Parliament.

George Nicholls, M. P., is one of the labor representatives in the British parliament and may always be counted upon to defend the interests of workingman. He has been a preacher for years. He is also an earnest Endeavorer and contributes an article weekly to the organ of British Christian Endeavor societies, a vigorous and entertaining account of doings in parliament. It is much to the glory of Christian Endeavor that our society has so noble a representative in the world's greatest legislative assembly.

A recent article about Mr. Nicholls' work closed with this paragraph:

"I happened to speak to Mr. Nicholls about a prospective engagement. He referred to his diary. Not a Sunday free until June! Towns in every part of the country were included in the list. A telegram arrived arranging for a meeting on the morrow at Bournemouth. Mr. Nicholls was in 1907 on eight committees in the house. He was busier than ever."

Tribute to Christian Endeavor.
In the Christian Endeavor Times of London Hon. George Nicholls, M. P. gave his testimony to the value of Christian Endeavor. Speaking of his actual experience, he says:

First I was humble but active member of a small society in a country church during the early days of the movement in this country. It furnished several of us (young people) an opportunity for service other than the Sunday school, and these workers became the pastor's "handy men" and a branch mission three miles away from the church was formed, and the services were conducted for years by these young volunteers until a church was built.

My second experience was as pastor in charge of another country church, where I remained nine years. A glorious revival broke out during the first year of my settlement. Then a Christian Endeavor society was formed, and the young people became like "David's helpers" to me. They were the life and soul of every prayer meeting, open air service and week night preaching service. The lookout committee was always on active service, and our sunshine committee carried sunshine into many a sickroom. The Endeavorers also ran a band of Hope.

I knew every time I entered the pulpit to endeavor to preach that my Christian Endeavorers were praying for me. Week day and Sunday alike they were ever a source of joy to me, and this did not end when I left them to take up the work at another church, for they still hold up the hands of their present pastor.

During recent years I have moved in a wider field. Since my election to parliament I could not continue my pastorate, but am preaching every Sunday somewhere.

I hope this gives me ample opportunity to see the good work the Endeavorers in carrying on, often under trying conditions, and also to hear the splendid testimony of both pastors and deacons to the effective work of the Endeavorers in both the church and the Sunday school.

I admit there are a few exceptions. Not all are perfect. Not all the ministers and deacons are perfect.

World's Largest Endeavor Union.
The Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor Union, the largest in the world, has 4,600 societies, nearly 235,000 members.

Burrell entered into a season of penance and flagellation of spirit, lightened only by the moments when he was with Necla and when she made him forget all else. This damnable indecision goaded him to self-contempt. He despised himself for his weakness. His social instincts and training, his sense of duty and the amenities of life that proud men hold dear tugged steadily, untiringly at his reason, while the little imp of impulse sat grinning wickedly, ready to pop out and upset all his high resolutions.

It was on a heavenly day, spiced with the faintest hint of autumn, that Necla received the news of her good fortune. One of her leasers came into the post to show her and Poleon a bag of dust. He and his partner had found the pay streak finally, and he had come to notify her that it gave promise of being very rich, and now that its location was demonstrated no doubt the other "laymen" would have it within a fortnight. As all of them were ready to begin sluicing as soon as the ground could be stripped, undoubtedly they would be able to take out a substantial stake before winter settled and the first frost closed them down.

She took the news quietly, but with shining eyes, though her pleasure was no greater or more genuine than Poleon's, who grasped both her hands in his and shouted gleefully:

"Bien! I'm glad! You'll be rich gal for sure now an' wear plainfine fine dress lak I fetch you. Jus' t'ink, you fin' gol' on your place more queecker than your fader, an' he's good min'r too. Ha! Dat's bully!"

"Oh, well, they will find it on your claims very soon," she replied.

He shook his head. "You better knock wood w'en you say dat. Mebbe I draw de blank again. Nobody can't tell. I've do de sam' t'ing before, an' dose men w'at been workin' my groun' dey're gettin' purty blue."

"When you do become a Flambeau king," she continued, "what will you do with yourself? Surely you won't continue that search for your far country. It could never be so beautiful as this." She pointed to the river that never changed and yet was never the same and to the forests, slightly tinged with the signs of the coming season.

"It's very fine," agreed the Canadian. "I don't see w'y anybody would care for livin' on dem cities w'en dere's so much nice place outside."

"Yes," said Necla, "I've no doubt one would get tired of it soon and long for something to do and something really worth while, but I should like to try it once, and I shall as soon as I'm rich enough. Won't you come along?"

"I don't know," he said thoughtfully. "Mebbe so I stay here; mebbe so I tak' my canoe an' go away. For long tam' I t'ink dis Flambeau she's de promis' lan' I hear callin' to me, but I don' know yet for wile."

"What kind of place is that land of yours, Poleon?"

"Ha! I never see 'im, but she's been cryin' to me ever since I'm little boy. It's a place w'e don't get too hot on de summer an' too col' on de winter; it's place w'e birds sing an' flowers blossom an' de sun shine an' w'e can sleep widout dreamin' 'bout it all de tam'."

"Why, it's the land of content. You'll never discover it by travel. I'll tell you a secret, Poleon. I've found it—yes, I have. It lies here." She laid her hand on her breast. "Father Barnum told me the story of your people and how it lives in your blood—that hunger to find the fat places. It's what drove the voyageur and coureur du bois from Quebec to Vancouver and from the Mississippi to Hudson bay. The wanderlust was their heritage, and they pushed on and on without rest, like the salmon in the spring, but they were different in this—that they never came back to die."

The girl laughed derisively in his face.

"Now, don't get sore. I mean business. I'm no soft talking southerner with gold buttons and highfatin' ways. I don't care if you are a squaw, I'll take you."

"Don't talk to me!" she cried in disgust, her voice hot with anger and resentment.

But he continued, unheeding: "Now, cut out these airs and get down to cases. I mean what I say. I know you've been casting sheep's eyes at Burrell; but, Lord, he wouldn't have you, no matter how rich you get! Of course you acted careless in going off alone with him, but I don't mind what they're saying around camp, for I've made little slips like that myself, and we'd get along."

"I'll have you killed!" she hissed through her clinched teeth, while her whole body vibrated with passion. "I'll call Poleon and have him shoot you!" She pointed to the river bank a hundred yards away, where the Canadian was busy assorting skins.

But he only laughed at her show of temper and shrugged his shoulders as he answered her roughly:

"Understand me, I'm on the square. So think it over and don't go up in the air like a skyrocket."

She cried out at him "Go—go—go!" and finally he took up his bundle, saying as he stepped out slowly:

"All right! But I'm coming back, and you'll have to listen to me. I don't mind being called a squaw man. You're pretty near white, and you're good enough for me. I'll treat you right. Why, I'll even marry you if you're dead set on it. Sure!"

She could scarcely breathe, but checked her first inclination to call Poleon, knowing that it needed only a word from her to set that nut brown savage at Runnion's throat. Other thoughts began to crowd her brain and to stifle her. The fellow's words had stabbed her consciousness and done something for her that gentler means he had.

Together the two went down to the boat, leaving Necla behind, and not long after Runnion sauntered up to the store and addressed her familiarly.

"Hello, Necla! I just heard about the strike on your claim. That's fine and dandy."

She acknowledged his congratulations curtly, for, although it was customary for most of the old timers to call her by her Christian name, she resented it from this man. She chose to let it pass, however.

"I had some good news last night myself," he continued. "One of my men has hit some good dirt, and we'll know what it means in a day or so. I'll gamble we're into the money big, though, for I always was a lucky cuss. Say, where's your father?"

"He's out at the mine."

"We've used up all of our bar sugar at the saloon, and I want to buy what you've got."

"Very well; I'll get it for you."

He followed her inside, watching her graceful movements and attempting, with his free and easy insolence, to make friendly advances; but, seeing that she refused to notice him, he became plucked and grew bolder.

"Look here, Necla; you're a mighty pretty girl. I've had my eye on you ever since I landed, and the more I see of you the better I like you."

"It isn't necessary to tell me that," she replied. "The price of sugar will be just the same."

"Yes, and you're bright, too," he declared. "That's what I like in a woman—good looks and brains. I believe in strong methods and straight talk, too—one of this serenading and moonlight mush for me. When I see a girl I like I go and get her. That's me. I make love like a man ought to."

The girl laughed derisively in his face.

"Now, don't get sore. I mean business. I'm no soft talking southerner with gold buttons and highfatin' ways. I don't care if you are a squaw, I'll take you."

"He's out at the mine."

"We've used up all of our bar sugar at the saloon, and I want to buy what you've got."

"Very well; I'll get it for you."

He followed her inside, watching her graceful movements and attempting, with his free and easy insolence, to make friendly advances; but, seeing would not have accomplished. They had opened her eyes to a thing that she had forgotten—a hideous thing that had reared its fangs once before to strike, but that her dreams of happiness had driven out of her Eden. All at once she saw the wrong that had been done her and realized from this brute's insult that those early fears had been well grounded. It suddenly occurred to her that in all the hours she had spent with her lover, in all those unspeakably sweet and intimate hours, there had never been one word of marriage. He had looked into her eyes and vowed he could not live without her, and yet he had never said the words he should have said, the words that would bind her to him. His arms and his lips had comforted her and still her fears; but, after all, he had merely made love. A cold fear crept over the girl. She recalled the old corporal's words of a few weeks ago, and her conversation with Stark came back to her. What if it were true—that which Runnion implied? What if he did not intend to ask her, after all? What if he had only been amusing himself? She cried out sharply at this, and when Doret staggered in beneath a great load of skins he found her in a strange excitement. When he had finished his accounting with the Indian and dismissed him she turned an agitated face to the Frenchman.

"Poleon," she said, "I'm in trouble. Oh, I'm in such awful trouble!"

"It's dat Runnion! I seen 'im pass on de store wile I'm down below." His brows knif in a black scowl, and his voice slid off a pitch in tone. "What 'at say, eh?"

"No, no; it's not that. He paid me a great compliment." She laughed harshly. "Why, he asked me to marry him." The man beside her cursed at this, and she continued: "Don't blame him for liking me. I'm the only woman for 500 miles around—or I was until this crowd came—so how could he help himself? No; he merely showed me what a fool I've been."

"I guess you better tell me all 'bout dis t'ing," said Poleon gravely. "You know I'm all tam' ready for help you, Necla. When you was little feller an' got bust your finger you run to me queek, an' I feex it."

"Yes, I know, dear Poleon," she assented gratefully. "You've been a brother to me, and I need you now more than I ever needed you before. I can't go to father. He wouldn't understand, or else he would understand too much and spoil it all, his temper is so quick. Don't think I'm unwomanly, Poleon, for I'm not. I may be foolish and faithful and too trusting, but I'm not—unmaidenly. You see, I've never been like other girls, and he was so fine, so different, he made me love him. It's part of a soldier's training, I suppose. It was so sweet to be near him and to hear him tell of himself and all the world he knows. I just let myself drift. I'm afraid—I'm afraid I listened too well and my ears heard more than he said. My head is so full of books, you know."

"He should have know' dat, too," said Poleon.

"Yes," she flared up. "He knew I was only an Indian girl."

The only color in Doret's face lay now in his cheeks, where the sun had put it, but he smiled at her—his warm, engaging smile—and laid his great brown hand upon her shoulder softly.

"I've look' in bees eye an' I'm always t'ink he's good man. I don't never t'ink he'll mak' fun of poor little gal."

"But he has, Poleon. That's just what he has done." She came near to breaking down and finished pathetically, "They're telling the story on the street, so Runnion says."

"Dat's easy t'ing for fees," he said.

"Runnion she don' spread no more story lak dat."

"I don't care what they say. I want the truth. I want to know what he means, what his intentions are. He swears he loves me, and yet he has never asked me to marry him. He has gone too far. He has made a fool of me to amuse himself, and—and I couldn't see it until today. He's laughing at me, Poleon; he's laughing at me now! Oh, I can't bear it!"

The Frenchman took up his wide hat from the counter and placed it carefully upon his head, but she stopped him as he moved toward the door, for she read the meaning of the glare in his eyes.

"Walt till you understand—walt, I say! He hasn't done anything else."

"Dat's de trouble. I'm goin' mak' 'im do somet'in'."

"No, no! It isn't that. It's these doubts that are killing me. I'm not sure!"

"I hear plain tee," he said. "Dere's no tam' for monkey roun'."

"I tell you he may be honest," she declared. "He may mean to marry me, but I've got to know. That's why I came to you. That's what you must find out for me."

"I'm good trader, Necla," said the Canadian after a moment. "I'll mak' bargain wit' you now. If he say yes he'll marry you I don't ask no more, but if he say no you geee 'im to me. Is it go?"

She hesitated, while he continued musingly, "I don't see how no man on all dis worl' could lef' you go," then to her, "Waal, is it bargain?"

"Yes," she said, the Indian blood speaking now, "but you must learn the truth. There must be no mistake. That would be terrible."

"Dere ain' goin' be no mistak'."

"If he should refuse I—I'll marry some one quick. I won't be laughed at by this camp. I won't be a joke. Oh, Poleon! I've given myself to him just as truly as—if well, he—he has taken my first kiss."

Doret smote his hands together at this and began to roll his head backward from side to side as if in some great pain, but his lips were dry and silent. After a moment the spell left him, the fire died down, leaving only a dumb agony in its place. She came closer and continued:

"I never let them point at me and say, 'There goes the squaw that—he threw away.'"

"You mak' dis very hard t'ing for me. I'm dead weary."

"Listen," she went on, lashing herself with pity and scorn. "You say Father Barnum will be here on Sunday. Well, I'll marry some one, I don't care who!" Then, with a sudden inspiration, she cried: "I'll marry you. You said I could be a wife to you."

He uttered a sharp cry. "You mean dat, Necla?"

"Yes," she declared. "Why not? You'll do it for my sake, won't you?"

"Would you stan' up wile me long-side of de pries", lovin' dat oder fellar all de tam'?" she asked querely.

"Yes, yes! I'd rather it was you than anybody, but married I'll be on Sunday. I'll never let them laugh at me."

Doret held his silence for a moment; then he looked up and said in level tones:

"It's easy t'ing for go an' ask 'im, but you mus' hear hees answer wit' your own ears; den you can't t'ink I'm lyin'. I'll feek 'im 'ere on dis place if you feek it for hide youself belin' dose post." He indicated a bundle of furs that were suspended against a pillar and that offered ample room for concealment. "Dere's goin' be no lies to day."

He pulled himself together and went out with the tired gait of an old man, his great shock head bowed low. A few moments later he returned.

"I've sent Li'l Jean for 'im. You get in dere out of sight—an' wait."

301t10 W. T. JACKSON, Sec'y.

THAT MORTGAGE EXEMPTION LAW

Time For Filing Affidavits is at Hand

The Statute is Very Brief.

TWO MONTHS IS THE LIMIT

Papers Must be Filed With County Auditor and Renewed Each Year to be Effective.

The time for filing affidavits for mortgage exemption is at hand, and between the first of March and the 30th of April those desiring the benefits of the law must file exemption papers with the county auditor.

The affidavits may be sworn to before any person authorized to administer oaths, or before the auditor. The affidavit must be sworn to by the person securing the deduction.

No person can secure more than $700 deduction under the law, nor can they deduct the mortgage indebtedness from the credits as taken by the township assessor. The word mortgage includes those which are held by non-residents of the State as school loans and building and loan associations, but only one claim can be made on any one mortgage, and a bond for a debt cannot be exempt under the law.

If the husband and wife own property jointly they are not entitled to more than $700 exemption, except as they each hold real estate encumbered by mortgage. Attorneys or agents for owners cannot make affidavits.

The township Assessor has nothing to do with the exemption law and cannot swear persons to affidavits. Persons having real estate in different townships must make affidavit for each tract, which is to be included in the valuation for the amount of deductions they are entitled to. When mortgages are held by persons outside the county, but inside the State, duplicate affidavits must be made and the duplicate filed with the original in the Auditor's office.

If payments have been made on mortgages since first given the amount of the payments must be deducted from the original amount and only the net amount due shall be stated. No deduction shall be allowed greater than half the assessed value of the real estate under mortgage; that is, in case the valuation is less than the mortgage on the same. For example, suppose the valuation of the real estate for taxes is $1200 and the mortgage indebtedness is $800, the amount deducted under the exemption law would be $600, or half of the assessed valuation.

These facts are of interest to those who wish to file affidavits and are the more important provisions of the exemption law.

SET THE DOGS ON HIM

This Is Charge Rube Waddell Makes Against His Wife.

St. Louis, March 5.—A petition for divorce has been filed by George Edward ("Rube") Waddell here. The document charges that Mrs. Waddell showed "a violent and ungovernable temper" at various times, and also "that on one occasion, when plaintiff threatened to leave defendant on account of her association with persons distasteful to plaintiff, while they were residing in the city of Lynn, Mass., defendant caused plaintiff to be attacked by a pair of vicious dogs and seriously wounded and lacerated." Waddell is famous as a baseball pitcher, being at present a member of the local American League team. Mrs. Waddell, the petition states, resides in New Hampshire.

Marshall County Goes Dry.

Plimouth, Ind., March 5.—Marshall counted voted dry by a majority of 1,150 in Thursday's local option election. Marshall county recently elected Adam Wise to the legislature by a majority of nearly 700. He ran on a platform declaring publicly for repeal of the county local option law.

Retirement of Judge Purdy.

St. Paul, Minn., March 5.—Judge Milton D. Purdy of the United States district court, gave up his seat on the bench yesterday, and Judge Page Morris is holding court in his place. Judge Purdy held that his appointment received from President Roosevelt had ended. This appointment was not confirmed by the senate owing to opposition from Senator Nelson.

THEY INSISTED A DISPLAY TODAY

Belated Seventh New York Passed in Review Before the New President.

AN ECHO OF INAUGURATION

On Account of the Storm Gotham's
Crack Regiment Failed to Materialize in Washington.

Washington, March 5.—President Taft and Governor Hughes of New York reviewed the belated Seventh New York infantry, which on account of the storm arrived here too late to participate in the inaugural parade from the reviewing stand in front of the White House this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

President and Mrs. Taft were the centers of interest last night at the culminating feature of a memorable day—the inaugural ball in the pension building. The scene in the cavernous building, which had been transformed into a canopied court of ivory and white, was another of the brilliant pictures which are quadrennially painted here by the gathering of a vast and brilliant assemblage from every section of the country. With all the color and movement of a military spectacle, with the softening influence of delicately tinted gowns and the interest of a personnel seldom equalled at a social function, the inaugural ball holds a place unique in the history-making of the day.

While the ball was in progress indoors, a display of fireworks on the monument lot in the rear of the White House marked the end of the outdoor celebration. For hours the thinly clouded heavens were alight with screaming rockets, with sun clusters that challenged the brilliance of day, with fiery "cobras" and all the fantastic creations of modern pyrotechnic skill. Aerial salutes, floating festoons, illuminated balloons and scores of other features made the display visible from one end of the capital city to the other.

Mr. Taft's Busy Day.

Prior to his visit to the ball, President Taft had entertained at tea in the White House the members of the Yale club; had dined with Mrs. Taft at 7 o'clock and had stopped in at the Metropolitan club to say a few words at the dinner of the class of '78 at Yale.

Mr. Taft's day was one of continuing cheers and plaudits from the moment he first appeared on the White House portico to go to his inauguration until he returned late last night, an unwilling leave-taker from the inaugural ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft were the guests of the Roosevelts at the White House Wednesday night, setting a precedent in the courtesies of the executive mansion, as they did again yesterday when Mrs. Taft accompanied the newly made president and Mrs. Sherman the new vice president, from the capitol at the head of the imposing paarde, to the White House. The presidential carriage, drawn by four by horses, which had been closed against the storm as President Roosevelt and Mr. Taft made their way to the capitol, was thrown open as the return journey was begun, and President Taft, quickly recognized by the crowds which stood enthusiastically unmindful of the ankle-deep snow and slush about them, was acclaimed all along the great distances of the avenue. Wearing his broadest of smiles, he bowed right and left in acknowledgment of the succeeding ovations which marked his progress to the White House.
